Dedalus Announces Mike Jackman as New Board Member

Mike Jackman brings over 30 years of experience in healthcare IT and enterprise software to the Dedalus Board of Directors

Milan 20 Feb 2024. Dedalus, a leading provider of healthcare software solutions, announces that Mike Jackman has joined its Board of Directors as independent member, effective Jan 23rd.

Mike is a seasoned executive with extensive experience in healthcare IT, enterprise software, and digital transformation.

"We are delighted to welcome Mike to our Board of Directors," said Andrea Fiumicelli Chairman of Dedalus Board of Directors. "He is a proven leader with a deep understanding of the healthcare IT market and the challenges and opportunities it presents. His expertise and insights will be invaluable as we continue to grow and innovate in the global healthcare space."

Mike Jackman served Senior Vice President , Chief Operating Officer of the Leidos Health Group and Deputy Group President of the Leidos Health Group, where he oversaw the delivery of IT solutions and services to federal and commercial healthcare customers. He was responsible for driving growth, profitability, and customer satisfaction across a portfolio of offerings that included electronic health records, health information exchange, data analytics, cybersecurity, and cloud computing.

"I'm thrilled to join the Dedalus Board of Directors and contribute my expertise to shaping the future of healthcare IT," said Mike Jackman. "I believe technology has the power to revolutionize patient care, and I'm excited to be part of the team driving that innovation."

Prior to joining Leidos, Mike was an operating partner at Ardan Equity Partners, a private equity firm exclusively focused on healthcare enterprise software. His main responsibility consisted of partnering collaboratively with chief executive officers (CEOs) to build platforms designed to accelerate growth. Before that, Mike was CEO of Mach7 Technologies, focused on modernizing enterprise imaging, unlocking disparate silos, and consolidation of patient data.

Mike also served as the Americas Region CEO for Healthcare Digital at General Electric (GE) Healthcare where he was the business leader responsible for the Healthcare Digital business in Latin America, the U.S., and Canada. He has also held executive roles for Carestream Health, iSOFT Health Group, and Eastman Kodak where he led Kodak healthcare research and development globally. Mike's career started at IBM where he was Vice President of System and Technology, Personal Systems Group for close to two decades.

A graduate of the University of Rhode Island with a Bachelor of Science in electrical and electronics engineering, Mike also earned his Master of Business Administration from Nova Southeastern University. Some of his many honors include GE Healthcare's President's Award and several IBM management excellence awards.
